

Uber for Business

How to connect with customers or employees during the pandemic

In a changing era, companies need new ways to engage those who mean the most to them. From offering meal delivery to providing commute options, businesses can use Vouchers to help show appreciation wherever those people may be.

Social distancing

Use Vouchers to boost morale or build community while people remain apart.

- Order delivery for remote employees
- Allow rides for essential workers
- Showcase virtual event benefits

Reopening

Vouchers can increase convenience for employees or help boost foot traffic to physical businesses.

- Give employees options for in-office meal delivery
- Provide alternatives to the traditional commute
- Help get customers to businesses

Business travel

Vouchers for rides or meals can help employees or recruits feel safe as they venture out for business.

- Facilitate airport transport or food on the road
- Treat interviewees to rides or meals

Learn more → about a Vouchers program for your business.